FILELOOKUP - Portable DOS - Search Files in a Directory and Return an Index of The Files and Size in a List This project has to find a file based on the specified file name and return a listing of all files found.

FILELOOKUP can also look up a file based on a checksum and can be used to test a directory with thousands of files. INSTALLing & usage: Dosbak is a portable application. It should work on all Windows based DOS Operating Systems such as Windows 95/98/Me/NT4/2000/XP/Vista/7. You can use the following installation and usage commands on any DOS system.

* Read file for more information on the installation and usage commands. *

You will have to change the paths to your DOS partition and Program Files. Read File for more information on the installation and usage commands.

Usage: Run FileLookup.exe to perform a directory search. Specify the path to the directory to be searched. To find a file based on the name of the file, provide the name of the file, e.g. "c:\docs\doc1.txt". To search for a file based on a checksum, i.e. a checksum number of a file, use the command line parameter "-c". In this example, the specified file is

---

"c:\docs\doc1.txt". The output will be similar to: C:\> dosbak.exe -c

"c:\docs\doc1.txt" c:\docs\doc1.txt
