This expansion features the original game's in-depth setting (Greek, Egyptian, Norse, and Chinese mythology) and, 1,400 years after its demise, plan to build a replica TARDIS at the Tower of London The BBC has announced details of plans to build a full-scale replica of the TARDIS, the Doctor's time travel pod, at the Tower of London. The BBC has announced details of plans to build a full-scale replica of the TARDIS at the Tower of London. The £15m project will be the biggest regeneration of the castle since it was destroyed by a fire in the 14th century. The BBC explains that an original metal TARDIS will be built inside the Stone Tower and that visitors will be able to get a close look at it. The pod will be connected by a lift to the first floor of the Stone Tower, where there will be an exhibition. Visitors will then be able to look out over the Tower and see the real TARDIS. The project, the largest regeneration of the Tower of London since the castle was destroyed in the 14th century, will take place in stages. Initially, the authentic interior, which will be built in a new building on the north side of the castle, will be ready by 2008. When the visitor's centre is opened next year it will include a gallery and a viewing gallery for the TARDIS. Tom Paterson, director of The Tower of London, said: "It's a privilege to be involved in something that will be a unique attraction for the world."
