References Category: Villages in Nagaur district Q: Why won't javascript function work I have this javascript function which I am using to show a div on click. function showMessages() { document.getElementById("divUpdate").style.display = 'block'; } I call the function on a click event. And the function seems to work as its supposed to... the CSS of divUpdate is modified to display:block. However, nothing shows on the page. Does anyone know why this is happening? Thanks for any help. A: It should be function

showMessages() {
    document.getElementById("divUpdate").style.display = 'block';

Without the second getElementByld it would get the last getElementByld, which is empty at that time. New York Yankees outfielder Aaron Judge left Saturday night's game against the Minnesota Twins at Yankee Stadium with a contusion on his left shoulder but remained in the game. Judge said after the game that it was not a serious injury. "I just got a little roll (from the ball) and just got a little slide, got out of the box," Judge said. "It will be fine, I know it is going to be fine." Judge acknowledged
