Supreme Court stays J&K police restriction New Delhi: The Supreme Court today stayed the Jammu and Kashmir Government's order to impose a ban on publication of photographs and news reports of terrorists and their hideouts. A bench of Justices J. Chelameswar and A.K. Sikri expressed displeasure with the government not giving a reason why the order was imposed. "It's the right of the media to observe the trial of a person accused of committing a crime," the bench said. "When a judge orders a suspect not to speak, does that mean the media would not be able to cover it?" it asked. Senior advocate Gopal Subramanium, who was representing Jammu and Kashmir High Court Bar Association, and advocate Shivani Ranganathan, who was representing a news magazine, told the apex court that the restriction order remained in force because of a "draconian" law. This is the fourth time the name of the principal accused in the instant case is missing from the judgement. Sibal had told the court that a 16-page status report has been filed on the issue. This is the second time in two years that the top court has quashed an order restraining media from publishing photographs and news reports of individuals. In February 2015, a bench of Justices J Chelameswar and S.A. Bobde had quashed the restriction order. Sibal had contended before the bench that the restriction was "draconian" and "preventing the media from publishing photographs that would have "great importance" to the case as "it would lead the trial court to a right conclusion". The bench, also comprising Justices Madan B Lokur and

Deepak Gupta, had on the previous occasion observed, "The media is meant to give voice to the disenchanted. It is meant to hear the unheard… and report and expose the abuses of executive power. The media is also meant to highlight and magnify the evil doers who are responsible for the great losses suffered by the ordinary people." In December 2013, the apex court had quashed an order passed by the Jammu and Kashmir High Court, which had imposed a ban on the media to publish any photos/news reports featuring the face and name of the prime accused in the instant
