Layer and Layer Masks Photoshop has both regular layers and layer masks. A `_layer_` is a rectangular shape that can be freely moved up or down the canvas. A `_layer mask_` is a square shape that can be cut out of an image layer and placed over another layer, layer mask, or other visible image. You add a layer mask to any transparent areas (such as in the background) of a layer, and that layer mask combines with the layer's background layer to create the final image. Figure 9-2 shows a sample of a layer and layer mask; see also the box below. Figure 9-2: Add a layer mask to a layer to create a final image. Layer masks are created with the Create Layer Mask icon, which you find on the bottom of the Layers panel. You can also select the Create Layer Mask option from the Layers panel menu, or open the Select and Mask panel (if it isn't already open). Note: You can not usually modify the layers of a document directly. You can, however, modify a layer that contains multiple layers. Layer masks are useful because they allow you to manipulate only the parts of a layer that you want to modify. When you cut or move a layer, for example, you don't alter the layer mask; you just modify the layer that it is assigned to. Because layer masks are lighter on the canvas than regular layers, they are also easier to see. A red layer mask appears in Figure 9-2 when the gray layer in the figure is selected. You'll want to get to know layer masks so that when you work in the Photoshop workspace, you know what changes are made to a layer. You'll also need to know how to work with these two different editing tools when creating finished images.

Positive Messages Eric and his classmates have a lot of fun on the school bus, but it's not all fun and games. They face real-world situations in a regular school setting and learn the value of teamwork. Positive Role Models & Representations Eric has a good relationship with his teacher. She responds to his work well, and gives him advice if he asks. Violence & Scariness There are several instances of physical and emotional bullying that are focused on young girls and at least one character with a gun. Several knives are drawn, and a character is threatened with death. There is a confrontation in which a boy is locked in a room and a girl threatens to push down a set of stairs to get him. There is also a gang of teenage girls and a couple of instances of hand-to-hand combat involving young girls. An instance of sexting is shown. There is a scene where Eric brings his pocketknife to school, but it's not used for any violent purposes. Sexy Stuff Language The main characters sometimes use slang like "hi" and "bye," but this is rarely repeated and instead seems to pop up as part of a joke. There is some mild cursing, such as "gosh," "gee," and "heck," but overall, there is no strong language. Consumerism A sponsor appears, but its presence is minimal and doesn't seem to affect the way the characters act. Drinking, Drugs & Smoking Tobacco and alcohol are once again in abundance, so there's plenty of drinking, smoking, and cavorting on the bus. What parents need to know Parents need to know that this is a television show with a good story but not always realistic or safe for young kids.
