The point is that when I had a directory which I moved, I had several hard links to the original directory. If I move the original directory to a different location, the hard link may still point to the original directory and then I won't be able to access the file I moved. So the easiest way I can think to fix the situation is to find all of the hardlinks and to delete them manually. A: You can use 79a2804d6b
