This is an age old problem for Windows users, but most people don't realize how important it is to make sure that they can see their files, programs, and even data that is being stored on their hard drive. Many of these threats to your computer can be found by running a simple scan and keeping an eye on the results. If you're looking for ways to keep your computer safe, here are some suggestions that you should try: Change your browser's default settings. If you are using Internet Explorer, consider changing the "Automatically update" settings to "Never". This will help to prevent Windows from automatically updating IE with any of the updates and patches that come out. Keep your system up to date. If you are using Windows 10, it is recommended that you go to the Settings page and download the Updates tab. If you see updates available, you should download and install them. Use a legitimate virus scanner. When you install your antivirus program, it will run a scan and you will see the results. If you see an alert that any files are infected, take the time to remove them. If you have any problems or questions, please let us know at [email protected] and we will help you in any way we can.
